Methodology

According to the Harvard University adult development study, what makes people happy is being close to other people and have human interactions, despite that in modern times it appears that people prefer more social media.

Therefore “Il Ritmo degli Ostelli” project is born from the passion and desire to make the music a reason for social aggregation. The collaboration with a local association called The Bottega delle Percussioni and the AIG Point A Casa di Amici has allowed to put in the centre human relationships through creative workshops and musical experiences related to local traditions.

This way of traveling is a return to the origins, in a period of time when the human relationships were more important than the superficial images displayed in our days on social media.
